

- medico-legal study on evaluating them in detection and prevention the forgery. Journal of American Science, 11(11).
8. Tappolet J.A., Use of lycode powders for the examination of documents partially written with erasable ballpoint pen inks, Forensic Science International 28(1985)115–120.
  9. Welch J. Erasable ink; something old, something new. Sci Justice. 2008;48(4):187–191.
  10. Shama SA, Molla MM, Basalah RF, Sayed SE. Fading time study on prepared Thymolphthalein Phenolphthalein and their mixture disappearing ink. RJTA, 2008;12(1):9-18.
  11. Brunelle, R. L., (1985), Forensic Examination of ink and paper, Charles. Thomas, Springfield, Illinois, USA, 98-103.
  12. Asicioglu, F., Tekin, T., Ozbek, N., Cevik, E. F., Ozcan, M., & Mohamed, A. L. (2019). Prepared disappearing ink and deciphering of documents. Journal of Forensic Sciences, 64(5).
  13. Retrieved from: <https://www.thoughtco.com/how-to-make-disappearing-ink-606318>
  14. Hemantini, D., & Khudbudin, M. (2018). Decipherment of disappeared ink: A case study. Brazilian Journal of Forensic Sciences, 7(3), 156-161.
  15. Lee, J., Kong, G. S., Kang, T-K., Kim, B., & Jeon, O-Y. (2014). Invisible ink mark detection in the visible spectrum using absorption difference. Forensic Science International, 236, 77-83.
  16. Retrieved from: <https://www.nippon.com/en/features/c00520/the-science-behind-frixion-erasable-pens.html>
  17. Campbell, J. D., Bosma, A. W., Bannon, J. S., Gunter, M. M., & Hammar, K. M. (2012). Demonstration of thermodynamics and kinetics using FriXion erasable pens. Journal of Chemical Education, 89(4), 526-528.
  18. Teo, H. C., Noor, N. M. M. S., & Wong, Y. K. (2017). Ink that disappears: Examination of questioned documents related to Frixion ink in Malaysia. Canadian Society of Forensic Science Journal, 50(3), 146-155.
  19. Ordway, H. (1984). Characteristics of erasable point pens. Forensic Science International, 26, 269-275.