

20. CONCLUSION:

To summarize, we can say that Indian tourism has a huge potential for creating jobs and earning foreign currency. Because tourism is a multi-faceted and service-oriented industry, all divisions of the federal and state governments, as well as the private sector and non-governmental organizations, become active partners in the country's quest for long-term growth. It demonstrates that economic, political, and social harmony have a positive effect on tourist arrivals and receipts in countries.
