

- By using the energy conservation measures given in this study a total of 26.65% energy is conserved as compared to the base model. This is considered to be a significant.

5. References

- [1] Kirankumar G., Saboor S., Babua A .2015. “Investigation of Different Window and Wall Materials for Solar Passive Building Design”, ELSEVIER Procedia Technology 24 Page no.523-530.
- [2] Albayyaa H. , Hagare D. , Saha S. 2012. , “Energy Conservation in Residential Buildings by Incorporating Passive Solar and Energy Efficiency Design Strategies and Higher Thermal Mass” , ELSEVIER CSTE 12 Page no.510 -516.
- [3] Friess W.A., Rakhshanb K., Hendawi T. A.,Tajerzadeh S. 2012., “Wall Insulation Measures for Residential Villas in Dubai” , ELSEVIER ,Energy and Buildings 44 (2012) Page no.26-32.
- [4] Chen C., Cobar F. 2019., “Use of Simulation Software and Passive Design Strategies for School Design”, Computing in Civil engineering, ASCE Page No.491-498
- [5] Charde M., Gupta R., Vemuri A.,Kheterpal A.,Bhat S 2019., “Passive solar design for energy efficiency in buildings in composite climate”, Journal of Physics Conf. Series 1276.